COMPLETE NAMAYO
AVE. NEXT WEEK

With a complete equipment and about seventy-five men at work on their contract, the Blome Paving company will finish the paving of Namay avenue from Sutherland street to Norwood Boulevard in the course of the next few days. The paving of the street has been completed to a point within a block of the boulevard, and is being carried forward rapidly. The work has been in progress for about three weeks.

South of Sutherland street, Namayo avenue is being graded with a view to forming an approach to the subway line to be constructed under the C. N. R. tracks. A street car crossing is being installed at the corner of Namayo and Sutherland streets and the Namayo avenue line which formerly turned up Sutherland street to Syndicate avenue is being connected up with the Namayo avenue extension to the boulevard.

The town's chemical fire engine was a mere plaything with the immense flames and absolutely nothing could be done to check the advance of the devastating conflagration over the entire building.

The town had purchased a thousand fect of hose for use when the new waterworks system is installed. This was attached to the private pressure system of the C.P.R. and their emergency engine at the dam at the power house was put into commission. This was the salvation of the town as with the aid of the water it was possible to keep the fire from spreading beyond

The town is now past danger unless the wind changes. Moose Jaw was wired for help in fighting the flames, but it was found that their equipment could not reach Swift Current in time to be of use. About 1,000 men rendered assistance in various ways.

At a meeting of the parade division of the coronation committee held last evening, final arrangements were made for the parade to be held at Grand Park on June 22. The route of the parade was altered from that discussed at first. As rearranged, at the request of a number of business men on Nanyawo avenue, the route will take in the business section of that street. The order of march

As now planned the parade will start promptly at 9.30 o'clock at the intersection of Park Avenue, Kinistino and Rice streets and will proceed north on Kinistino to Boyle street, thence north on Nayamoy, along Nayamoy to Jasper, on Jasper to McLaughlin, on McLaughlin to Rice down Rice and Athabasca to Second, thence on Second to Jasper, along Jasper to McLaughlin and thence to the

The floats in the big procession will start going down the hill to the park as it is ordered that in case of accident may occur in taking the heavy weight down the steep incline. At the entrance to Diamond park the 101st Edmonton Fusiliers will form an avenue of honour for the school children, the boy scouts and the cadets who will file on to the grounds and take their places on the floats. The floats will be decorated and will be set directly in front of the grand stand commanding a view of the troops and the school children. These pictures will be shown throughout the Dominion as well as in Edmonton. The floats will be decorated to have a full host in the parade making one for each of the national bodies in the parade. ated discussion upon the relation of the treaty making powers of the mother country and the overseas donations opened in the Imperial conference yesterday when Sir Wilfrid Laurier introduced a resolution to the effect that the Imperial Conference should open negotiations with several foreign governments having treaties which apply to the dominions, with a view to securing liberty from those treaties for any colony which desires to withdraw from the operation in respect to the rest of the empire.

"There is a fair and reasonable necessity for what I ask," said Sir Wilfrid in introducing his resolution, as might be shown by the experience of Australia which, when it sought to give preferential treatment to British products

The Canadian premier dwelt upon the diversities of tariff policy which are not to be seen throughout the empire. Great Britain carried out a policy of free trade, while the United States levied a tariff as a means of raising the greater part of their revenue. Edmonton Portland Cement

CAPITAL STOCK $1,500,000 Co., Limited

LIEUT. GOV. G. H. V. BULYEA Chairman of the Board

Article Number Seventeen

The purpose of this article is to state briefly the financial methods which have been adopted by the Edmonton Portland Cement Company.

Plans are as necessary to the successful development of a great business as architecture is to building. And the first step in the organization of the Edmonton Portland Cement Company was the adoption of plans which were based on three considerations.

1. THE QUANTITY AND QUALITY OF THE MATERIALS AT HAND.

2. THE MARKET CONDITIONS, PRESENT AND FUTURE.

3. THE SUCCESSFUL OPERATION OF THE INSTITUTION AS A GOING CONCERN.

The first and second of these considerations have been so fully discussed in previous articles as to require no reiteration here. They are summed up briefly in these simple facts: The Edmonton Portland Cement Company owns what is probably the largest known marl deposit in the world and also a vast bed of the very best blue clay. These materials are sufficient for the manufacture of at least 12,500,000 barrels of cement. True Portland Cement can be manufactured from these materials at a cost not exceeding 78 cents per barrel. The present price of Portland Cement in this market is about $3.45 per barrel. The future development of the Northwest country will increase the demand for Portland Cement in the district to which Edmonton is the gateway from 400,000 barrels a year at present to ten times that amount in five years. The Edmonton Portland Cement Company has only assumed a price of $3.05 per barrel on its product and there is no probability that the price of Cement will ever go as low as that in this market, for the reason that the Edmonton price will always be the eastern mill price plus the freight rate to this district.

SIZE OF THE PLANT.

In determining the size of the plant a 1,500 barrel mill was decided upon for two reasons: First, because a 1,500 barrel mill is as large a plant as can certainly be financed in this community; and second, because it is desirable to keep the output well within the local market. When Portland Cement is shipped more than 800 miles the freight charge becomes the greater part of the selling price. As the business of the Edmonton Portland Cement Company has been planned, the average haul from the plant will be less than 250 miles, and the average freight rate per barrel less than 30 cents. The price of Portland Cement in the Edmonton district is based on a haul of more than 2,000 miles. That is to say, from fifty to ninety per cent. of the Portland Cement used in the Edmonton district will always come from Ontario or the United States. The price in this district will always be the Eastern mill price of about $1.25 per barrel plus a freight rate of about $1.85 to $2.20 per barrel. By keeping its output well within the Edmonton market, the Edmonton Portland Cement Company can sell its product at the price necessarily fixed by the Eastern mills, or at least $3.15 per barrel, less a freight charge of not more than 30 cents per barrel. All of which means a profit of at least $2.00 per barrel. This is why a 1,500 barrel mill was decided upon.

COST OF THIS MILL.

The cost of a 1,500 barrel mill, as determined by Messrs. R. D. Hasnan and T. J. Klossoski is about $630,000. A working capital of $170,000 was decided upon, making a total of the cash required at $800,000. To obtain this amount of money, nine thousand shares of stock have been offered to the public, which the promoters' fees of 10 per cent, will yield the Company $810,000 net.

BUSINESS POLICY.

All of this stock is being sold in Edmonton and vicinity for two reasons:

1. There is ample money in this community to finance this enterprise.

2. The stock is too good an investment for there to be any reason why a dollar of it should go elsewhere. A security that will pay 40 per cent. annual dividends and double in value in two years should be kept at home.

The Company's financial plans are based on three propositions:

1. To keep out of debt.
2. To employ the most thorough and scientific business methods.
3. To absolutely protect the interests of the shareholders.

The Company will keep out of debt by always providing the funds for its operations before any undertaking is entered upon. As an illustration of this, contracts for construction are let only as the funds have been actually obtained.

But the most important practical application of the principle of keeping out of debt is the provision of an ample working capital. The operating expenses of the Edmonton Portland Cement Company will be about $20,000 per month as follows:

EXPENSES OF A YEAR'S OPERATIONS.

Coal—37,800 tons at $2.50	$94,700
Labor	108,800
Gypsum—870 tons at $8.00	6,960
Edmonton Office	8,500
Small supplies and repairs	10,000
Depreciation	9,360
Insurance and taxes	4,680
	$243,000
Average monthly expense	20,250

WORKING CAPITAL.

A working capital of $170,000 has been provided for, which will be sufficient for eight months' operations. Portland Cement is strictly a 60 day commodity, and therefore a working capital of $170,000 will put the Company always on the safe side of its bank account by more than $100,000.

The advantage of an ample working capital in enabling the Company to plan its operations long in advance to adjust its output and business to market conditions, and especially to have coal and materials constantly on hand for year-around operations, is incalculable.

In a recent magazine article Mr. John D. Rockefeller made the statement that the great success of the Standard Oil Company had been due to two factors:

1. Ample capital always provided long in advance of requirements.
2. Well considered plans always determined upon long in advance of operations.

In other words, to put the proposition into epigrammatic form, success follows knowing what you are going to do and having the money to do it with.

COMPANY'S METHODS AIM FOR RESULTS.

The financial methods of the Company are all directed toward the accomplishment of four results:

1. Economical production.
2. Sales in advance of manufacturing.
3. Prompt collections.
4. Safeguarding disbursements.

The first three are their own recommendation and require no explanation. As to the 4th it is only necessary to explain that the funds of the Company are paid out only on the order of the Board of Directors and upon duly approved vouchers signed by three of the directors. Cheques against the Company's Bank account are made only to the bank in payment of approved vouchers and these cheques require two signatures. As will be seen, every disbursement of the Company requires five signatures of its directors.

CONSERVATISM IN OPERATIONS.

The interests of the shareholders are being protected by keeping the Company out of debt, and by a steady advance in the price of the shares.

As has already been explained ample capital will be provided for the operations of the Company so the dangers of debts will always be avoided. And the funds of the Company will be provided solely by the sale of the stock. There will be no bond issue to involve or impair the interests of the shareholders.

As has been shown heretofore, the Company will easily be able to pay a dividend of 40 per cent. on its entire capital stock. This should make the shares worth $200 as soon as the mill is in operation, but in addition to this, the book value of the stock will be $200 per share when the first statement is published. This statement will be substantially as follows:

ASSETS.

Cash on hand for working capital	$170,000
Plant at cost	630,000
Raw materials purchased and sufficient for the manufacture of at least 12,500,000 barrels of Portland Cement at 20 cents per barrel	2,500,000
	$3,300,000

LIABILITIES.

Capital Stock	$1,500,000
Surplus to shareholders	1,800,000
	3,300,000

As the enterprise proceeds and the business is developed the stock will advance in price, and the shareholders who have shown their faith by helping to pioneer this great enterprise will soon see their faith rewarded. The advance in the price of shares will begin between July 1st and 15th and as the development of the enterprise proceeds the advance will be about as follows:

July 15th	$110.00 per share
Sept. 1st	125.00 per share
Nov. 1st	140.00 per share
Jan. 1st	160.00 per share
June 1st	200.00 per share

Article No. 19, which will appear on next Tuesday will show how the price of the shares of the Edmonton Portland Cement Company is just as certain to advance with the development of the enterprise, as the best Real Estate in the city is certain to advance with the development of Edmonton.

Those desiring shares may obtain all necessary information by inquiring at the Company's Offices, 400 1-2 Moser-Ryder Building, Phone 2771.

PICTURES ARE BLAMED FOR BOY'S DEATH Took Savings Out of Bank and Then Suicides After Killing Shows

New York, June 13.—"Averaging the highwayman and the sun fighter in cheap moving picture shows was the underlying suggestion that ended in the killing of Johnny Mide." This is the opinion of Coroner Holtzhauser, who passed most of Wednesday night in probing the case. Young Mide was 11 years old. One of his playmates of Cherry street is held as principal and three as accomplices in connection with his death. Coroner Holtzhauser said he could not escape the conviction that the boys in custody are wicked and criminally crafty far beyond their years.

"Their conduct when they discovered that their little comrade was dead, their skilful avoidance of detection in hiding his body, and their cold-blooded conduct in robbing his body and selling the weapon with which he had been slain, then spending the proceeds easily in candy and in going to moving pictures, and in keeping secret for 26 hours the fact of his death, made a very bad impression on me," he said.

In a dark and dusty cellar at the end of a grimy coal bin in No. 19 Cherry street the coroner gathered at half-past two o'clock yesterday morning the three boys now prisoners. The dead boy lay at their feet as they were interrogated. From them Coroner Holtzhauser wrung the story of the killing of the boy who had lashed upon him the money he had stolen from his mother and of which he was robbed after his death. Andrea Leone, 13 years old, of No. 24 Cherry street, Frank Leone, 13, of No. 1 Balata street, and Antonio Leone, 13, of No. 29 Cherry street, accused their comrade, Carmine Pombino, 15, of the killing, and said he had threatened to kill him, too, if he revealed the secret of Mide's death.

Mrs. Mide, who had been in Ohio for several days, returned to her home last Wednesday evening, found her boy missing, her savings bank broken and its contents gone. She went out and catching Leone, Johnny's usual playmate, so frightened him with threats that he told the mother that her boy was dead and where his body was hidden in the cellar of the house in which Pombino lived. Leone told the coroner that he had sold the pistol with which Mide was killed, receiving $1.20 for it from Martin Flanagan of No. 22

Cherry street. Flanagan said he had resold it within an hour for $2.50 to James Giaris, of No. 32 Cherry street, and it was recovered from Giaris.

Sent to House of Detention
Bartolo Inzemi, a brother of No. 18 Monroe street, was arrested and sent to the house of detention when he admitted that he had sold to Johnny Mide for $3 the pistol with which the boy was killed. Coroner Holtzhauser was much incensed against Inzemi for selling a deadly weapon to a minor.

When Mrs. Mide went to Youngstown, Ohio, last week to appear in her suit against a railroad in connection with her husband's death, the coroner learned from the boys under arrest, Johnny Mide searched his home, in No. 28 Cherry street, and found the savings bank with about $15 in it. The Pombino boy said that last Monday night he invited the Leone boys and Mide to sleep in the flat of his family. The boys talked late about what they would do in the west, he said, and when Johnny pulled out the pistol and Pombino began to fool with it, Johnny, he said, declared it was not loaded.

Early in the morning, Pombino told the coroner, he got up to go down in the basement and open a fruit stand, but Johnny said he must not, as they were all going west. The boy declared that he then picked up the pistol from the bed and in fun aimed it at Johnny. "It went off," he said, "and Johnny fell over on the bed. We felt his heart and it didn't beat, so we knew he was dead."

From the boys' testimony it appeared they then held a council and decided to bury the body in the cellar.

"They found it impossible to dig a grave in the cellar, so they merely covered it with paper, after pushing it far back on the bin, and then threw all the trash they could find over it."

"After these cold-blooded proceedings," the coroner said, "the boys went out again to picture shows and spent most of the money they had stolen from the dead boy." They said they prayed at the side of Johnny Mide and put a crucifix in his hands. None was found.

"It was a cold-blooded, criminal act, with every circumstance to indicate that the boy was slain for the few dollars he had," said Coroner Holtzhauser. "It is hard to accuse such young boys of such an awful crime, but the logic gives no choice."

The boys are in the custody of the children's society, awaiting an inquest and action by the district attorney's office.

Well, where did you get the name, some of our friends ask us.

Well, this is the spot where the Hundred and First Regiment made their camp last year. They had a good time. They selected the place because the land was high and dry, the launch good and the distance from the station short; plenty of good shade trees and a score of other qualifications. So the owner of the property did them the honor to name the subdivision "Military Point."

SELLS-FLUTO CIRCUS

The get-happy season is upon us because, to hear the advance agent of the laughter idea walking through the streets of our city and announcing the advent of the circus. Of course, it is unnecessary to state that it is the Sells-Fluto Circus, because year after year we have become used to seeing this popular attraction coming to visit us almost simultaneously with the arrival of springtime.

This year they promise more than ever before and it is only fair to say that so far at least, they never have made their patrons the victims of misplaced confidence.

The policy inaugurated by them last year of cutting the price in half still prevails and for 25 cents it is possible to see the great show in its entirety. It is the first time in the history of mighty entertainments that such values have been offered to the amusement loving public. The Sells-Fluto people state that they made money at the cut price last year and that they will adhere to the innovation. This news will be gratefully received by those who have always looked upon their annual circus outing as an institution.

The Sells-Fluto Circus will arrive here on 17th of July. The parade will be given at 10 o'clock on the morning of the performance.

Twenty cars have been added to the show since it was here this time last year, which, of course, means that much more will be given for the money than ever before. The tent will be capable of holding 10,000 people so each one purchasing a ticket is assured of being seated comfortably.

Many new and original acts have been added to the regular ones, which are part and parcel of a circus. A complete programme will be published in these columns at a later date.

HAREM SKIRT IS VERY UNPOPULAR

BUT VERY FEW TO BE SEEN IN FASHIONABLE CENTRES OF U. S. AND CONTINENT

New York, June 17.—An inspection of the displays in the fashionable shops shows that striped materials have fully retained their early spring vogue, and many of the prettiest simple models shown in linen, taffeta, chiffon, etc., amine, surah and foulard are striped, the stripes giving individuality to the models without much additional trimming. Some of the striped chiffon taffetas in delicate tones are most practical and charming, and are made up into quaint little frocks of decided simplicity, with flounces of big, soft collars of muslin, net or lace, and with self-trimming.

One of the most satisfactory models of this type seen was worn at a luncheon the other day and was of the softest and most lustre is taffeta striped in cream lavender and ciel blue. The skirt hung straight and narrow from a high waist line defined by three wide sash end of black velvet, rounded almost entirely covered by a fichu collar of finely-embroidered yellowish-ba-list, the draped ends of which were knotted at the bust. In the back a big, flat, pump bow of black posed at the high waist line headed a single wide sash end of black velvet, rounded at the bottom. The wearer had a band of black velvet about her neck and wore an adorable little bouquet of fine white brand and ciel blue taffeta adorned by a cluster of tight curious little light silk roses in lavender, pink and blue.

Another handsome striped silk model was in blue and black taffeta. This model, too, had a large collar of embroidered tulle, but it did not assume fluted lines, and was laid over a scarf or fichu drape of black chiffon, which was drawn down to a point just above the black skirt, where it was held by an ornament, the ends of the way down the skirt. In the back the halste collar fell in a deep rounded

Even in self material, a wide band breaking the skirt length is trying to a figure not slender or tall, and this objection may be urged, too, against many of the tunic effects in connection with short skirts, although where the tunic falls low or its edge is not emphasized by striking trimming this objection is not a serious one for the ordinary figure.

Those who held that the harem skirt would find an authoritative acceptance have been justified by the event. The exclusive set during the Riviera season and at the early Parisian events has given absolutely no encouragement to the much exploited skirt, and Mme. Paquin doubtless rejoices that she alone among the famous dress designers of Paris refused even to consider the cut-off line and wasted no time, energy or material in experimenting with it.

Paquin and Callot have both been very happy in their three piece and coat and skirt models this spring and also in the handling of the tunic and separate train ideas in connection with evening frocks. Tunics cleverly draped in clinging lines and sloping into little sharp single or double trains are dear to both makers, and Paquin loves the little square train falling separate from a narrow skirt slit at the sides or in front.

Plated flounces and scant, flat lying ruffles make their appearance here and there, hinting at rebellion against the long-maintained lines, though even these planks and frills are so subdued that they give absolutely no suggestion of bouffancy.

One of Callot's very popular informal frocks is of tulle covered with the same material in a soft dull blue. The lower part of the bodice, including the sleeves and the borders of the two deep plated flounces which form the lower part of the skirt, are of tulle. Buttons covered with the silk and an embroidered nautical motif on the bodice are similarly fashioned so that the frock was primarily designed for a yachting costume are the only trimmings, but the frock has distinct originality and cachet.

Flat, overlapping flounces of not bordered narrowness by hand embroidery sometimes cover an entire skirt of satin from the narrowness of which they detract scarcely at all, and a charming taffeta frock is flounced in flat overlapping flounces to the waist, and another, of light green baliste, with a taffeta collar is similarly fashioned to top the flounced skirt, but these are, of course, the exceptions.

Striped collars and linens are used for many of the inexpensive morning frocks and some of the models in the cheap collar stripes are so chic and pretty that they might well be made to do duty for any informal summer afternoon and evening purpose. The black and white stripes regular and rather wide make up very modishly and are shown in some of the inexpensive materials, though one sees more of the white ground with very narrow black striping. This last is being used so extensively that its undeniable charm is being overshadowed by the quantity of it seen here, there and everywhere.

Pink is one of the best summer hat colors, and beautiful hats are shown in the soft pastel tones of pink trimmed in big soft roses shading through the lavenders and purples, or in black mousseline roses and foliage, or in ostrich plumes shading through dull pinks and smoky grays. Some attractive things are done, too, with soft pink chiffon stretched plainly over fine white straw.

Feathers are used even more than flowers in the very dressy rarer summer hats, but flowers are sprayed upon many of the smaller shapes, quite covering the crown and giving it picturesque height.

Many of the sleeves are extremely short, a detail in keeping with other Empire ideas, and one finds the elbow sleeves of some of the smartest models taking on bell lines instead of falling straight in peasant fashion.

The three-quarter sleeve is popular, and oddly enough the summer season has brought out a good many long sleeve models which will be far less comfortable than those with short sleeves.

Fabrics of fine linen, trimmed with baby Irish, antique or Valenciennes lace, are modish and add a decided touch of elegance to the plain house or waist.

Glass, porcelain or bone buttons may now be bought to match almost any color of dress material.

Silk musquettiers, voiles and grenadines have taken the place of chiffon to a great extent this season, and all these materials are closely copied in cotton fabrics.

A Public Service Which Demonstrates True Public Spirit

When one citizen shows his sympathy with the Sunday concert by a check as substantial as $100, and he a citizen who has had an extensive municipal experience in another town, it is time for the city council, the city solicitor, the commissioners and the street railway superintendent to stop and consider what they have done in withdrawing support from this most popular institution.

It is certainly a sad commentary on the spirit of the Edmonton authorities that a man from Wetaskiwin should show them the way, but in so doing Mr. MacNamara has done a public service and demonstrated a metropolitan public spirit.

Fort William's Experience Parallels Edmonton's

With an elected council and appointed commissioners, Fort William finds herself in the same exact position as Edmonton.

Certain members of the council decide that the commissioner—or manager, as they call him—of utilities, is not the man for the job and they try to dismiss him. Other members of the council believe he is fulfilling his duties in a manner satisfactory to the city, and they fight to keep him in office. When the last council meeting was adjourned by the 11 o'clock regulation three resignations were on the table but were not acted upon because the meeting came to a close. Next meeting will either precipitate an election in Fort William or see the utilities manager confirmed in his position by the council. In the meantime the city work is being held back by the imbroglio in the council.

The experience of Edmonton placed alongside that of Fort William indicates that the system which produces similar circumstances from the same causes could produce no other.

In other words, as has been said here before, the present system in Edmonton is unworkable, and the experience of Fort William corroborates a proof of that already adduced by the experience of Edmonton.

The escape, which would be furnished by the recall, is so evident that it seems strange it is not adopted without delay.

Model Agreement A Waste of Time

Why this waste of time and effort with a model gas agreement? The question before the public is whether the franchise should be retained by the city or should not.

If, in the light of the success which has been made in municipal utilities, the ratepayers are unwilling to give the franchise away, all the model agreements that were ever made would not enter into the case at all.

Those who want to give the franchise away argue that the city cannot afford to assume the risk of undertaking the gas enterprise. This is the same argument that has been made to do service in every case where the city undertook to establish a utility. It was urged with special force against the street railway. And yet every give, and the street, and the railway, within two years of its installation, is making money, how much we do not know owing to the system of book-keeping in vogue at the city hall, but quite possibly not less than $100 a day. And this service is being given at a price which is in no case more, and in every case except that of the street railway is less, than that charged by private companies similarly situated.

When in the past the ratepayers have been asked to vote money for the inauguration or the extension of utilities they have done so without hesitation. There has been no radical change in public sentiment, and there is no reason to suppose that the ratepayers want to give the gas franchise away after they have voted to retain every other franchise which the city owns.

Therefore, before the council prepares any model agreement or negotiates with Mr. Eaton, or any other franchise hunter, it is the duty of the council to first put a by-law for a municipal plant. If the ratepayers refuse to vote the money it may be taken as a reversal of policy, and it will then be time enough to commence negotiating agreements.

Vancouver's Dream and Vancouver's Opportunity

Vancouver's sea-going tonnage is now greater than that of Montreal, but the area over which she dominates as a distributing centre—if the sparsely-settled Klondike country is excepted—is enormously less than Edmonton's.

Forseeing the day when the Panama Canal will make her the greatest port on the Pacific, Vancouver merchants seek to extend the limits of their trade domain and their plan of doing so is to secure a railway from Burrard Inlet to the Peace River, Fort George, Fort McLeod and the Pine Pass or the Peace Gorge to the prairies of the Peace on the east slope of the Rocky mountains.

Vancouver hopes by the construction of such a road to divorce from Edmonton a trade at which this city, through a fortunate set of circumstances, will have first chance.

In its ambition to become a grain port, however, Vancouver overlooks the fact that the city which it is trying to out-ride in the struggle for trade—Edmonton—is the city which is going to become the eastern hopper for the trade of which Vancouver will be the spout; that the greater the growth of this city the greater will be the profit to Vancouver.

The great grain trade of the west is due to be the grain trade which originates in the country tributary to Edmonton, and finding its outlet by the easiest grade to the Pacific, reaches Europe by the Panama canal.

The Canadian Northern will have within a few days the whole of its Coast section, from the mouth of the Fraser to Kamloops Lake, under contract. It already has the greater part of the road from Edmonton to the mountains well under construction, and it will have the section from Tete Jean Cache to Kamloops lake surveyed within the next three or four months.

The Canadian Northern is in a position to have its road completed to the Coast within the next two years, and long before the Vancouver ambition of a road to the Peace prairies could be realized Edmonton will be spilling millions of bushels annually into the elevators along the Fraser for shipment to Liverpool via the Isthmus.

In an endeavor to wrest from Edmonton the trade of any part of the prairies or even of the Upper Fraser country the best that Vancouver could hope for is defeat.

If, on the other hand, Vancouver, Port Marm, and New Westminster (they are essentially one) place themselves in a position to properly handle the grain trade which Edmonton will be prepared to send her with the opening of transportation on the C. N. R., they will become the sea port for the most lucrative grain trade on the continent.

Vancouver would do better to forget her dream of a road to the Peace River and awaken to the immediate reality of the grain trade which is to be thrust upon her by Edmonton.

Vancouver never could take from Edmonton the trade of the empire which is essentially part of Edmonton's domain; but Edmonton could rob Vancouver of her chance of greatness by routing the grain trade to Prince Rupert.

A number of English patrols are also making arrangements to do "Parade Fire Fighting." This "fire" is made with three staves, fixed together with a loop of rope and set up in the form of a tripod. On the landing end of the rope is a hook upon which brown paper and matches are fixed. On the word of command, two Scouts scatter paper around by the staves and on the call of the leader, the matches are lit and the paper set on fire.

The famous "Be Prepared" chorus will also be sung by the selected troops of Scouts and other arrangements are being made for demonstrations in which the Canadian representatives will take part.

A Lecture from the Scout Editor

I would like to speak of a point in connection with the boy scouts which appears to me to be one of the dangers into which the organization is likely to fall.

Baden-Powell the organizer has a definite desire to keep them a patrol organization. They were not formed in order that boys might learn to fight and kill each other when they grow up but that they might grow up strong, healthy and manly with a sense of duty and honor which will make them more efficient in the building up of the empire than all the military training they could get in a life time and more useful in its defense should occasion ever arise where defense is necessary.

In many places the control of the scouts has passed into the hands of military men who are emphasizing the military side of it more and more. This distorts the very foundations of the scout code. Scouts are expected to do their duty as a matter of honor. Cadets and soldiers are ordered to do it and punished if they are not. Scouts are not ordered to do anything. If they are not punished if they do and do what they are expected to do. They simply choose to be scouts. Boys who will not live up to the scout law are not wanted in the organization.

When boys are ordered to do this and ordered to do that under the strictest discipline they cease to be scouts and become a set of duty or because they like to do it but simply because they fear punishment if they do not or refuse. This does not mean that scouts are not under discipline. They are most decidedly, but it is voluntary discipline. They do their duty because they are on their honor as scouts.

There is another point in connection with discipline which must be taken into consideration. Scouts are expected to salute their officers. Some scouts fail to do it, and others do it in a perfunctory and lazy manner, as if it was too much trouble to do it properly.

The last point is the scout law. When a boy joins the scouts he promises to obey the "scout law," but you find in some troops bickering and quarrels between patrols; in other troops discipline is rigid, in other troops scouting is confined to salvaging around the country and getting the scouts a bad name everywhere. Every scout should try to live up to his oath. I hope that all Edmonton scouts will try to live up to their law and high aims and ideals, and, above all, try to rectify these very obvious mistakes.

Letters to the Boy Scout Editor

Dear Scout Editor,—I am awfully glad that the Capital has a scout page. And say! It's great to do things with the other scouts and then read about them like looking for that kid out in the bush yesterday.

I helped look for him with the other scouts and say it was the first real bit of scouting we've had here. We set out in the bush and formed in a big line and looked carefully especially for tracks. It was hot work for a while going through the brush but we kept it up. I knew that to do it I found him and was prepared. I had a piece of chocolate and would have given him some with some water right at once.

I hope he'll be a boy scout some day. FRONTIERMAN.

English Souts are Preparing

The English Boy Scouts are making elaborate arrangements for the King's Rally on July 1. The Rally will take place at Windsor Park and will be the biggest thing of its kind ever known. One of the features of the Rally will be the song, "Boys, Be Prepared," to be sung by the English Boy Scouts. While the Scouts are singing, those Scouts from all parts of the world who have won medals for saving life will

CALDER, WEST EDMONTON, IS NOW A FLOURISHING LITTLE VILLAGE

Few citizens of Edmonton who have not been over the ground realize that just outside the city limits to the north where the Grand Trunk Pacific has its round house and repair shops there is a rapidly growing settlement of nearly 500 inhabitants. Lacking, as it does, direct transportation facilities into the heart of the city and having only three regular mails per week, little is heard of the village of West Edmonton or Calder, as it is more commonly known. In spite of this fact, however, the settlement continues to grow. Business houses, churches, schools and some very attractive private residences have been erected within the village limits and in Elm Park, the subdivision to the east of it. As the G. T. P. has been extending their lines westward and putting more rolling stock and engines on the road, the staff at the repair house has been increased, and this has brought more people to live in the village. Although a large number of new houses are being erected in the settlement this year there is a demand for more and every new house is occupied as soon as it is finished. The cause of West Edmonton was the G. T. P. shops and round house.

One hundred and sixty workmen, the majority of whom either live or board in the village are employed in the works and the plans of the company are to double the staff this fall. All the repair work on the engines and rolling stock used west of Edmonton is done in the Edmonton repair shop. The round house is an eighteen stall building sufficiently large to accommodate all the engines that ever are assembled in the yards at one time.

At the present time there are thirty-two engines to be looked after in the Edmonton repair shops. Thirteen of these are working out of Edmonton, east and west, and the remaining nineteen are working out of Edson, the majority of them being used for hauling the construction trains to the head of steel. The locomotive foreman in the present there are thirty miles of steel laid down or a sufficient length of track to accommodate between 1,000 of 2,000 cars. Trains bound in either direction from Edmonton are made up in the north yards and the cars of through freight from eastern points to Edson are transferred to the local train there. After disposing of its load of passengers at the C. N. depot the Winnipeg-Edmonton express is taken out to the north yards to stand there for the night while the engine is overhauled, the cars cleaned and any necessary repair work on any part of the train is done. The headquarters for the yard master, C. B. Thompson, are at West Edmonton.

Not the least part of the equipment of the G. T. P. at West Edmonton is the stores department, managed by T. Bousfield, assistant to the bridge and building master. All the supplies for the divisional point at Edson, such as small repairs for the engines and rolling stock are kept at the stores department in the Edmonton yards. A supply of repairs for the machinery is used in construction work further west is also kept on hand and in addition to this there is a great abundance of construction material such as bridge timbers, planks, ties, telegraph poles, fence posts, snow plow shoes, sewer pipe, telegraph wire, cross arms, construction machinery of all kinds, sewer piping and drainage tile.

It is estimated that the present time there is fully three million dollars worth of bridge timber lying in the West Edmonton yards. This is kept on hand in case of any emergency on the road east or west of Edmonton, such as the burning out of a trestle along the track that has not yet been replaced by more permanent steel work. The other supplies will total thousands of dollars in value. At the beginning of the season there was material for the construction of three hundred stations at hand in the yards. Shipments are being made continually to points where new stations are being erected along the newer sections of the road and at present these supplies have been reduced to about enough stuff to erect 150 station buildings.

Roundhouse and Shops
The history of West Edmonton begins with the commencement of construction work on the big $100,000 round house and repair shop two years ago last September. When this work started, the necessity arose for accommodation for the men engaged in erecting the buildings. Thus the settlement started. J. N. Beaudry, the present proprietor of the G. T. P. store in Elm Park, just east of the village of West Edmonton was in Wainwright, when the news came that the railway company had commenced construction on the roundhouse. He took the next train to Edmonton and erected his store on two lots which he purchased at the corner of Wright and Brandon streets. He has been in business there ever since.

On year ago this month A. W. Young erected a small store in Calder and started in a general store business. Other business places such as boarding houses and restaurants were established about the same time. Men who were working on the buildings moved to Calder and erected tents there until more permanent buildings could be constructed. At first the place was a village of tents. The clerks came in and there at first held their services under canvas. Soon, however, houses and shacks sprang up. Buildings were erected for the Presbyterians, the Methodists and the English church people and a Catholic church was also started in Elm Park.

The large number of children of school age in the village made it imperative that a school be established there and last September a school district was organized. The first trustees were A. A. German, J. Hooper, and A. W. Young. The services of Miss D. A. Dewar were secured as teacher and classes have since been held in the Presbyterian church building.

The settlement was incorporated as a village last August, and a council was elected, the members of which were W. G. McGonaghe, A. W. Young and J. Shotton. West Edmonton was the name chosen for the village. The council immediately went to work with what civic improvements were the most urgent, such as the grubbing and stumping of streets, and grading them. An effort was made to have Elm Park join with Calder and be incorporated as one village, but the consensus of opinion among the residents of Elm Park was more in favor of being taken into the Edmonton city limits.

Village Council
Last December in election of members to the village council and the school board was held with the result that the present incumbents of these offices are W. G. McGonaghe, T. Bousfield and J. Davidson in the council and ing the franchise were concerned.

"If at the end of 25 years," continued Mr. Bouillon, "the city and the company were unable to agree as to the terms for the purchase of the distribution system and amount to be paid for rental of the gas plant, the agreement provides that the question be settled by arbitration."

Must Purchase System

"It must be a purchase of both plant and distribution system," replied Mr. Bouillon, "otherwise make it a perpetual franchise."

Consent for the lighting company gave it as his opinion that the agreement in its present form would not work out all right.

"Provision must be made for the purchase of the whole gas business at the end of 25 years and for guaranteeing the bonds," persisted Mr. Bouillon. "It is a question whether the ratemakers would want an agreement that makes the city a partner in the gas business of the city; they would prefer a straight franchise, granted in the regular way. The capital invested in such an enterprise must have fair returns, else there is no use going into it."

City to Have Control

"Cities that have municipal control of the finances and service of gas and other public utilities are out of date now," observed Mr. Bouillon.

"We are not opposed to the city coming in as a partner," returned Mr. Bouillon, "but as I said before the question is whether the ratemakers will want it that way. Some prefer municipal ownership, others are opposed to it and still others prefer granting a franchise to a company."

"This agreement is in the nature of a compromise," continued Commissioner Bouillon. "We can find people who will take such a proposition up with the city."

"You are guaranteeing the bonds," returned Mr. Bouillon, "and that amounts to the same thing practically as going into the business. The question stands now the city is trying to force itself on Mr. Eaton and make itself a partner in his enterprise whether he likes it or not."

"I don't think Mr. Eaton is objecting very seriously," remarked Commissioner Bouillon. "He has waited here in the city patiently, and I think he wants this franchise."

"It is a business deal, and I think the objections raised by Mr. Eaton's counsel to a committee composed of Commissioner Bouillon, City Solicitor Bown and Mr. Biegar."

found on any liner leaving New York, Boston or Philadelphia so far this summer. The preliminary scare about the danger of overeating may have kept some of the Americans away. All the best hotels complain that their regular American guests did not come this year. The proprietors do not appear to be able to get the official and other guests of all nationalities who have taken their places.

Many Canadians on Hand.

The statements regarding the absence of American visitors do not apply, however, to the Canadians. It does not take a very observant eye to detect the fact that visitors from Canada are more numerous than Londoners today than ever before. Parties from Montreal, Toronto, Halifax, Ottawa and from Winnipeg, Edmonton and other cities of the west are to be found registered at nearly every hotel.

The Dominion premiers and parliamentarians, with the official guests from the other colonies, are being elaborately entertained. Today the parliamentary visitors, nearly all of whom are accompanied by their wives and families, became the guests of the nation and during the ensuing three weeks they will be entertained as such.

Today they dine at the Waldorf hotel, and tomorrow evening they will be the guests of the Royal Automobile club at a supper and reception. The formal luncheon of welcome will take place in Westminster Hall Monday.

Elaborate Police Precautions

The police are taking the most elaborate precautions to prevent panics or other catastrophes on the days of the big parades. The possibility of fire in some of the mammoth grand stands is the most serious consideration. Almost everywhere are hand grenades placed, while fire extinguishers are freely distributed about. It is probable that the police will follow the same plan adopted at the last coronation of erecting strong barriers at the corners of the streets to prevent any enormous crush of people. The entire route of the processions will be lined with soldiers. The usual calculation for London is that with soldiers is 10,000 troops per mile, but this is only for a single rank on each side of the street, and the ranks have to be modified where, as in the present case, there are many points of the route at which extra ranks are necessary, and others where considerable bodies of troops must be massed. It is probable that 60,000 soldiers of all ranks will be required for this purpose.

to the actual value was amply confirmed by the first session of the court of revision held Wednesday. That the valuation on something approaching $7,000,000 worth of land within the limits is on the whole satisfactory to the ratemakers themselves was clearly shown by the fact that less than twenty property owners entered objections against their actual valuation. Some of those objecting did not appear at the sitting and accordingly the council decided to meet again in court of revision next Wednesday.

Assessment Too Low.

One man actually appealed because his assessment was too low. Did this man have his eyes closed? He did, and he was the only one of those objecting to actual valuation that was allowed. The appellant, against whose assessment evidently wanted on the voter's list, Messrs. Hulbert, McKernan and Bown agreed to let the rate be lowered on sub-divisions not yet divided into lots in view of a former agreement with the city, that the time the limits were extended, that their property would be assessed as farm lands until otherwise used. The amendment to the charter passed by the last legislature repealed this agreement and in consequence the valuation of 118 acres belonging to Mr. Hulbert was raised from $100 to $500 per acre. Mr. McKernan's land was raised from $100 to $500. B. H. Hulbert raised his regular annual appearance to protest against the valuation of Mayfair at $300 per acre. But his appeal was allowed. The entire list of appellants was as follows, Messrs. Coyle and Coyle being charged with the public to separate school assessment and McGrath, Holgate and Co. being granted a vice-versa alteration.

C. S. B. (overcharge) held over; H. and F. Albrecht (overcharge confirmed); J. Falconer (wrong assessment) held over; W. F. Coyle and E. Coyle; C. A. Young (assessed too low) granted; R. H. Alexander (assessed too high), confirmed; Mrs. S. Lobb (too high), confirmed; Mrs. Hecker (too high), confirmed; J. W. McKernan (too high), confirmed; J. Walker (too high), confirmed; J. R. Lavell for self, W. E. Schneider, H. Carl, J. Hoffman (too high), confirmed; R. W. Lendrum, R. A. Hulbert, J. Donnan, J. F. Twiss (too high) confirmed; Jansson, Hyndman and Hyndman, and J. D. Hyndman for Hon. J. Gordon (too high) held over.

COMMISSION MEETING

With a view of opening a restaurant, erecting a dance pavilion and starting other forms of amusement at the park, Brown and McKernan sent in a communication to the city commissioners yesterday afternoon asking the master be taken up and see what arrangements may be made. They would have dancing until 11:30 on week day nights and on Sundays use the pavilion for serving refreshments. Commissioners Agar and Candy will investigate and report to the board.

A letter was received from Gorman, Grindley and Glancy stating that they supplied better low lift pumps for use at the power plant than the contract of $2875 paid for and they submitted a bid for an additional $1950. The claim was not allowed.

The commissioners directed the city building inspector to furnish the board with a report stating why he has not carried out their instructions to remove the structure at Fifth street and Jasper.

Manager Toney, of the Boston Busters, has benched Steinfeldt and placed Ingeron back on third base.

Don't overlook the fact that River View and Cromdale Place
